C. Miln's rendition of Hamlet, though not large was an appreciative one, and all who attended are enthusiastic in had worked up the case, and concerntheir praise of the performance. Both ing other preliminary matters. in the conception and portrayal of the title role the eminent gentleman who essayed the part displayed histrionic talents of a high order coupled with faithful and la borious study. His efforts elicited frequent and hearty applause from the ment. He stated that he had signed start, the audience even insisting upon his appearance before the curtain at the close of the first act. So complete was Mr. Miln's success last even ing that prominent citizens in attend ance were heard to rank his [Hamlet among the best they had ever witnessed anywhere. The company is in all respects a good one, and although we have not space to particulariza, we cannot omit mention of Mr. Theodore's Polonious, which was excepthat he is not to appear in Omaha. To-night Mr. Miln will present "Cardinal Richelieu," and, judging from the Kansas City papers, where he played it a few evenings since and which are fairly laudatory in their who attend. The company being new and comparatively unknown here did not draw heavily last night, though there was a very good house, but to-night there should and doubtless will be a larger audience, composed of the the best people of the city.

There has in some way been a general impression among the Omaha people that Col. Burleigh was to appear before them during his stay here in the role of Othello. By the present arrangement it appears that we are to be deprived of seeing him at all, and it is respectfully suggested that a change of programme which could obviate this deprivation would of importance so far during the two days be not unacceptable to Omaha people. If Othello could be put on for to-night instead of Richolieu it seems that it would be gratifying to many theatre-

Damaging Testimony Given in the Trial of D. G. Hill, of Lincoln.

False and Forged Vouchers Procured and Cashed.

Testimony of Merchants and Busi ness Men-

The trial of D. G. Hull, lately cus todian of the government building at Lincoln, commenced Monday in the United States district court, Judge Foster, of Kansas, presiding in place of Judge Dundy, the regular occupant of the bench. The charge against Hull is presenting false vouchers to the government at Wachington, while custodian, and obtaining the money on them, the amount involved and said to have been thus fraudulently obtained by him being between $5,000 and $6,000.

This is alleged to have been done by falsely representing to the depart-ment that supplies for the Lincoln building had been purchased in excess of the actual amount, and the money thus received being pocketed by the accused.

The witnesses for the government number about twenty, and they were in attendance upon the opening of the

The prisoner is well represented by two able attorneys of this city, and so far as the trial has already progressed it is apparent that a strenuous effort will be made to avert a conviction. Hull presented himself in court and during the proceedings sat near his counsel giving them instructions when he thought necessary and otherwise supervising its conduct. After the jury had been sworn the first witness. Mr. Swords, of the treasury department, was called, and testified that he

R. D Stearns, Hull's law partner was next examined. He testified that vouchers which purported to be for furnishing the building with twentyfour arm chairs, at $168.25; one hundred and twenty-five yards of matting at $119, and a wardrobe for $45 by himself were false. He had never delivered the articles. He had signed

The whole session of the court yesterday was devoted to the hearing of evidence. Hull, as on Monday, was day before, although his equanimity was well preserved and he laughed and chatted with friends during the progress of the care when not occupied listening to the evidence as it was brought out by the attorneys.

A. M. Davis, a carpet dealer of Lincoln, testified that a voucher was offered in evidence for putting down carpets in the building the amount of which was $114. Witness testified that he had never put down any carpets for Hull and never had received cent from him.

A man named Brady, a carpet layer, was called and testified that he had helped put down the carpets when they were laid and had received $17 in payment for his work. He had signed a voucher for $34

The witness testified that a number of vouchers abown him by Mr. Lambertson, the United States attorney, for coal alleged to have been furnished by Marshall & Co. were all incorrect. The first one was for $1,280. This coal had never been furnished at all. Another voucher supposed to represent the value of coal to the amount of $1,725 was false. The witness stated that coal in this instance had been delivered amounting to $72 50, but no more. Another voucher shown witness called for 135 tons of coal and was valued at $1,765. He said that in that case only 114 tons had been actually delivered and it was valued at $1,540, instead of $1,765. J. C. McBride, the Lincoln post-master, was the next witness called. An examination bearing on a voucher for $527 for coal, and made out by Hull but certified by McBride, was commenced, but the attorneys for the defense objected, a wrangle ensued between the opposing counsel which erminated by the judge deciding that McBride's evidence would not be admitted on this point. The reason was because the voucher had been made out by Hull, and that therefor Mc Bride's evidence was not the best evidence. The witness was excused, but the point most desired by the prosecution, namely, that the amount had been collected. The youcher made out by Hull was brought out. No coal had been delivered for this voucher. W. H. Alexander, a furniture dealer, testified thal he had signed a number of vouchers in blank, but had deliv-

The Sympathy Which is Due to the Drunkard.

To the Egitor of Tan Bun With your permission 1 would like to ask the editor of the only religious newspaper in Omaha by what authority he makes the following statement, which appeared in Sunday morning's insue? "The drunkard who is powerless to control his own appetite." This I think is not very consistant with the fundamental principles of religion, as or by the forerunner of Jesus Christ and his disciples." Keep the commandments. Repentye of your sins. Lead a new life. Do unto others as you would have them do unto you, Love your neighbor as yourself, and you shall be made heirs of eternal life. Does any sane man doubt for one minute, but that our Creater knew he had endowed every man with a will power strong enough to resist temptation, or he would have made some exceptions in his digine law to the human race. Of course the argument might be used that Adam would not have sinned if he had possessed the will power to resist, tempter. This, however, in my opinion, is a very poor argument, because exparience or precedents ought to be the final tribunal in a moral status, just as they ere in a legal status, and it seems to me that we ought not to punish crimes at all, if it can be proven that men as a race do not posess the power of self-control. know, however, that law-the fear of speedy punishment-dors have an effect over those who would commit crimes greater than drunkenness. The great religious editor, therefore, is mistaken, when he says that society has no mercy for a drunkard. If he had said for a drunkard without money, I might have agreed with him; but as a matter of fact, a first class family, betray the confidence of all who trust him; aye, even whip his faithful wife, and what is the penalty?

A PLEASANT CALL

Rev. J. H. Ingram Asked to Come to California.

Rev. J. H. Ingram, for several years pastor of the Christian church in this city, has received two very flattering calls of late. One of these was to the position of state Evangelist of California, with headquarters at San Francisco, and the other was to take charge of the church at San Jose.

Mr. Ingram has not yet decided as o what action he will take in regard o the two propositions, but his many friends in the city, and especially the ongregation he has so earnestly and successfully labored to build up, would regret his departure from his present field of work most sincerely.

Owing to the severity of the weather but few were present on Thursday, but an informal meeting was held, presided over by the district | tion of the lungs, vice president, H. S. Sydenham. The convention formally opened Friday, 10 a. m., with Clara B. Colby, vice president, in the chair. The delegates present gave interesting reports and anecdotes of campaign work. The association received the resignation of Dr. McNamara, of the executive committee, and appointed Mrs. Ford, of Kearney, member pro tem to fill the vacancy. At the afternoon session of the association plans of work were discussed. The evening session was opened with prayer by Rev. Ayres. Clara Colby gave an address on "The Dead Issue." speeches were made by Mrs. Ford, the county president; by Mr. Hamer, taught by the great leaders of Israel Judge Barnd, Mr. Scott and others of Kearney; by J. T. Holmes, of Te-cumseh, and Belle Bigelow, of Genoa. All the speeches were rull of congratuation on account of the full vote obtained and of promise of hearty sup port in the future. The convention was closed with the doxology, an appropriate ending in a county that had given so good a majority for the amendment. The executive committee held four sessions and made important plaus for future work.
